Audience Young But Discriminating at Big Parade

Some eyes sparkled with excitement and some filled with tears along the route of the big parade Monday. One little girl who was not quite sure how long she could stand the heat was flag-waving Dawn Dwinnell, 3. Further down the road, 11-month-old Norman White sat back in his buggy sipping a long cool one. Obviously he thought the marchers crazy not to do the same. A fascinated Rachelle Pelletier, 7, however, applauded the efforts of the perspiring participants. Sandra Van Meel, 18 months, brought her daddy along, the better to see with, my dear. Four-year-old Terry Polson got tired of waiting for the next float to come along and sat himself down for a spot of grub, while nearby, three-year-old Sandra Mackwell clapped dutifully and wondered when it was all going to end. (Ryan Bros.)

SOME EVEN FAINTED

Half March, Rest Watch

By IAIN HUNTER

It seemed as if half of Greater Victoria lined city streets Monday morning to watch the other half march by.

Well before the two-mile procession began to unwind from the vicinity of Royal Athletic Park, people jostled one another for choice vantage points along the route. Then, just as determinedly, they gave way to small children and their elders.

Other pictures, stories, pages 7, 10 and 17.

For over 2½ hours, mothers waved proudly at their swaggering, uniformed sons, harassed fathers tended to the needs of increasingly fretful youngsters, and young gallants from the rooftops caused already sunburned majorettes to blush.

Old folk in specially-placed chairs nodded in time to the martial music. Babies slept in their buggies under the trees on Harris Green.

Some heat casualties were led away semi-conscious by a St. John Ambulance volunteer or policeman. City police alone conveyed nine fainting cases to hos-

It was the interminable length of the procession, aggravated by numerous delays along the route which caused the crowd to thin towards the end, rather than

by two helicopters and a navy Tracker, swung past the saluting base at Pandora and Vancouver at 10:10 a.m.

Directly astern, the scarlet-bedecked band of the First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry marched at an even sprightlier pace.

The throngs clapped in time to the regimental tunes, by now old favorites with Victorians, such as Mademoiselle from Armentieres and Has Anyone Seen the Colonel?, as the colors passed.

At a more relaxed pace the officers of 25 Militia Group led their men behind the artillery band.

Onlookers were relieved to see among the vehicles

Also piped along the route - by the Esquimalt Legion pipe band — were parade officials, mostly Elks, and a smattering of city aldermen including the Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean in a tartan golf cap, and municipal councillors.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)-Astronaut Gordon Cooper said he tried at first to be indifferent to the green light that flashed on in his Faith ' capsule, signalling trouble with his re-entry guidance system during his 22-orbit flight.

"I saw the light go on and I thought maybe at first I'd just ignore it," the astronaut told a press conference Sunday, the first since his twoday voyage through space

But he finally decided, he said, not to be too much of an optimist concerning the green light, which indicated-erroneously as it turned outthat he might be coming out of orbit prematurely.

Who Cares About Taxes?

THE ORDINARY CANADIAN, are not permitted to cross-examine one assumes, is interested in taxes. He pays them in huge amounts, visibly and invisibly - a hidden federal sales tax on most goods, an open provincial sales tax in most provinces, income taxes, succession duties when he dies and municipal taxes directly as a property owner or indirectly as a tenant. On top of all these he pays a nation-wide tax known as the tariff.

But if the taxpayer is interested, his interest is not apparent to the naked eye when a royal commission studies his problems. Such a com-mission is now hard at work attempting (quite vainly, we suspect) to devise a new and better tax system.

One might suppose that this open forum would attract taxpayers in droves to present their grievances and proposals of reform. Instead, the newspapers of eastern Canada tell us that hardly a handful of spec-tators attends the commission's public sessions. Often no more than one private citizen forms the audience as the lawyers and tax experts

Probably the citizen sees little point in listening to a discussion so complex as to baffle any layman. Moreover, the commission does nothing to enlighten the public. The briefs filed by various organizations are not read when witnesses testify. A layman cannot understand what the experts are talking about. Nor are briefs distributed in advance of these heavings to give interested. these hearings to give interested persons the chance to prepare re-buttals. Still more unsatisfactory, counsel for interested organizations

The commission is not concerned, of course, with public relations. It has an immense and staggering task before it and needs all its energies to cut through the tax jungle. But, through no fault of its own, the commission's timetable does not fit the rapid movements of events in

While the former Diefenbaker government was ready to wait a year or two at least for the commission's report, the Pearson government obviously does not intend to wait. In its judgment the present tax system is in need of early change to stimulate the economy. Hence government policy is running far ahead of the commision's leisurely investigations. By the time its re-port is filed it may be, in many respects, irrelevant to an entirely necessarily belated, may prove useful just the same. It is studying the details and inner workings of taxa-tion which in many cases will hardly be touched by the impending major shifts in government policy. These matters, incomprehensible to the ordinary citizen, can and often do have important effects on the national economy, especially on capital investment, one of Canada's greatest needs.

On balance, therefore, it is wise to let the commission finish its work but the citizen who pays all taxes in the end should keep his eye on Parliament and Mr. Gordon's forthcoming budget.

VICTORIA HAS ONCE MORE produced a fine spectacle in its Victoria Day parade, and the Ben-evolent Order of Elks is to be congratulated on an undertaking in which excellence has become almost routine.

The bands, the floats, the school displays, the comedy turns and the organization entries combined to produce first-rate entertainment and the crowds, never particularly demonstrative in Victoria, showed their appreciation. Paricularly attractive were the entries of various ethnic groups of the area.

ethnic groups of the area.

Victoria Day would be a much lesser thing without the annual parade. May all those responsible know that their efforts are enjoyed and that the community is grateful to them.

"How they could ignore a dish like that and choose some ancient 18-year-old as Miss Victoria is beyond my understanding . . .

The effectiveness of Western an opposition is not a Western simple reflection of its size. It is often forgotten that the succession of huge Lib-eral majorities prior to 1957 was broken in 1945 when Mr. King came back with only 125 members in a House of 245. Evidently the divided Opposition of 1945-49 made little impression on the mind of the country. But a much smaller opposition

The commission's work, though probably much stronger than it combined long experience with legal talestatements that even the national leaders. ent and could be relied upon to man the walls against any assault, have passed from the parliamentary scene.

It would appear, in these circumstances, that Mr. Diefenbaker will have to rely heavily on the second-stringers of the last Parliament; especially on younger men with experience as parliamentary secretaries. Some perhaps will make their reputations in a season of Conservative adversity. But they can scarcely be expected in a first session to fill the gaps left by the departure or defeat of Mr. Fleming. Mr. Fulton, Mr. Green, Mr. Hees, Mr. Walker, Mrs. Fairclough and Mr. Rell.

The Conservatives face another prob lem. Mr. Diefenbaker has antagonized most of the newspapers which normally most of the newspapers which admin-support his party. The more he domin-ates the Conservative opposition, the more difficult it will probably be to win back the influence which the party once exerted especially in metropolitan areas.

Even if the Conservatives were in better shape, they could seriously threaten the government only by finding common ground with the minor parties. The NDP, though weaker than before with the defeat of Mr. David Lewis, is a cohesive force which might be a valuable ally in Parliament. But it would require a combined operation by three parties to create danger for the Pearson government. Some of his followers, are so anxious to back the Liberals that they have had to be "disciplined" for going beyond his own policy of general support for the government. According to Mr. Caouette, others wanted to back the Conservatives even at kisk of doing business with their arch-enemies of the NDP. Mr. Thompson's man in Quebec, Dr. Guy Marcoux, repelled by the anti-intellectualism of his late associates, is now out of the party although not yet out of Social Credit.

OTTAWA -- It has become increasingly apparent in the last two or three weeks that there will be no significant tax relief for the ordinary citizen in Finance Minister Gordon's first budget. But now it's beginning to look as if the pendulum is swinging further. In two words: higher taxes.

The new government is reliably reported to have found the country's finances in a worse state than the previous government had revealed or the incoming administration had imagined. Speaking with knowledge of the situation, Prime Minister Pearson has referred to the "terrific deficit" run by the Diesenbaker government in the year that ended March 31.

Cabinet ministers hint darkly that the country is nearly bankrupt. On April 10 of last year Finance Minister Fleming budgeted for a $745 millions deficit. The June austerity program was to have cut that by about $200 millions. But now scores of litigations are being launched in the Exchequer Court here by companies seeking refunds of the special tariff surcharges they paid after this austerity tax was imposed by order in council in June

* * * This tax was never submitted to Parliament for legislative action, and when in opposition the Liberals contended that it was an illegal tax. Now they perforce take the position of the law officers of the Crown in the department of justice that it was a legal tax-but if the court rules otherwise, upholding the Liberals' pre-election contention, the Liberal administration will be fur-ther in the hole by an estimated $100 mil-of national finances. It could have been a hint at higher taxes to come in Gordon's budget next month. Even before the election Pearson warned that some of his government's decisions would be hard and unpopular.

While the Throne Speech was largely a rerun of the Liberals' election promises, the program it detailed will be a costly one both in terms of money to be spent and of revenues from corporation taxes to be cut as incentives to industry.

It's generally true that you have to have oney in order to spend it, and the main way government gets money is from taxa-

Another way is by borrowing. But this siphons off capital which, if the government's economic expansion program is to succeed, should be devoted to industrial expansion. Nor is foreign capital the answer, for the government is seeking to reduce foreign owner-ship of Canadian industry. Nor is borrow-ing from the Bank of Canada the answer, because this results in an inflationary increase in the money supply, and the money supply has already been substantially increased in the last few months.

That brings Mr. Gordon back to the nary taxpayer. You and me, Joe.

Indian diplomatic sources disclosed this figure as T. T. Krishnamachari, minister of economic and defence co-ordination, met with President Kennedy to discuss the three-year program. Everyone watching Monday's parade found it hot. But even the most uncomfortable of the onlookers expressed sympathy for the marchers. Weatherman Bill Mackie said the temperature varied from 83 to 85 degrees, but in the sun, with heat reflected off the pavement, it rose well into the 90s, he said.

The crowd clucked its sympathy in particular for the junior marchers, some of whom were barely three feet off the smouldering asphalt.

St. John Ambulance officials said they were unable to estimate how many people they treated for sunstroke, but said there were "a great many."

MOST POPULAR float in Monday's parade was the city's entry bearing the 1963 Miss Victoria, Merle Webb. The 18-year-old, who was crowned Sunday, was accompanied on the float by her two princesses, Pam Crawford and Linden Louis. The float was escorted by Victoria Girls' Drill Team.

After ail, she doesn't have the chances that Penny has to investigate the stores. But there is such a tape and it has en on the market for some time

Waterproof and heat resistant, the tape can be used to repair any number of things. Your garden hose for example or that plastic garment bag with the little hole that is letting in all the dust, the children's water toys, the shower curtains, or even rubber gloves.

Tape is plastic and stretchy so that it can also be used to repair books, making a nice neaf finish as it stetches tidily

around corners

Manufacturer also suggests that it may be used to decorate, as it comes in yellow, red, green, white, blue, brown and black, as well as clear. Roll % x 108 inches is 29 cents; 1½ x 108 inches is 59 cents.

Another mending tape that pesists moisture and won't become brittle is handy because you can write over it. On the role it appears white, but it is definitely transparent when placed on a piece of paper. Roll % x 200 inches is 39 cents. More economical way to buy it is in $2 roll which is 1,296

Don't buy a new one, mend the old! Call Penny at 343131 to ask where she found the tape.

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)—A judge who recently sentenced two men to the whipping post today staunchly defended the punishment as better than imprisonment which only "festers criminals."

"Institutionalism is only to keep bad dogs off the street; it doesn't do any good." Superior Court Judge Stewart Lynch said. "I want to punish."
"Somebody should think of the victim, not the criminal.

Somebody should think about the public who should have law enforcement. I can't get concerned about one who perpetrates the crime."

Audience Young But Discriminating at Big Parade

Some eyes sparkled with excitement and some filled with tears along the route of the big parade Monday. One little girl who was not quite sure how long she could stand the heat was flag-waving Dawn Dwinnell, 3. Further down the road, 11-month-old Norman White sat back in his buggy sipping a long cool one. Obviously he thought the marchers crazy not to do the same. A fascinated Rachelle Pelletier, 7, however, applauded the efforts of the perspiring participants. Sandra Van Meel, 18 months, brought her daddy along, the better to see with, my dear. Four-year-old Terry Polson got tired of waiting for the next float to come along and sat himself down for a spot of grub, while nearby, three-year-old Sandra Mackwell clapped dutifully and wondered when it was all going to end. SOME EVEN FAINTED

It seemed as if half of Greater Victoria lined city streets Monday morning to watch the other half march by.

Well before the two-mile procession began to unwind from the vicinity of Royal Athletic Park, people jostled one another for choice vantage points along the route. Then, just as determinedly, they gave way to small children and their elders.

Other pictures, stories, pages 7, 10 and 17.

For over 21/2 hours, mothers waved proudly at their swaggering, uniformed sons, harassed fathers tended to the needs of increasingly fretful youngsters, and young gallants from the rooftops caused already sunburned majorettes to blush.

Old folk in specially-placed chairs nodded in time to the martial music. Babies slept in their buggies under the trees on Harris Green.

Some heat casualties were led away semi-conscious by a St. John Ambulance volunteer or policeman. City police alone conveyed nine fainting cases to hos-

the 90-degree heat. Elks Club parade officials also experienced me-chanical breakdowns. One float had to be withdrawn in front of the reviewing stand. The Salvation Army float never arrived at the assembly point.

After members of the Victoria Motorcycle Clul had smoothed the edges of the crowd, Cpl. Don Buie and his city police motorcycle corps, reinforced by white-helmeted members of the RCMP in motorcycle saddles, led the van off down cook and to Pandora.

The navy, led by HMCS Naden band, and escorted by two helicopters and a navy tracker, swung past the saluting base at Pandora and Vancouver at 10:10 a.m.

The three-way dive into the red was shown in the annual reports of the Canadian National Railways, Trans-Canada Air Lines and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. The 1962 re-ports were tabled in the Comnons Friday by Transport Min-ister George McIlraith.

They showed that the CNR scraped within $600,000 of turning a profit on its rail operations, while TCA and the sea way were in the black on their operations. However, all three went into the hole to meet in terest payments on capital debt.

The government picks up the tab for the CNR and TCA defi-cits, but the seaway's loss is deerred for payment starting in 1965. The CNR deficit was $48,919,-454, compared with $67,307,772 in 1961. TCA's deficit was $3,-540,625, compared with $6,450,082. The seaway authority's deficit amounted to $13,104,012. compared with $10,275,896.

Both the CNR and TCA see a profit position ahead—subject to certain qualifications. The sea-way authority, however, is in a required to pay its own way, through toll collections, over a 50-year period ending in 2009.

STAGES COMEBACK

Steel production a week ago made a comeback from the slight decline of the previous week. Output totalled 2,548,000 tons and put industry operation at about 82 per cent of capacity. Steelmakers said steel was being used at a faster rate than expected and that the surge of buying couldn't be attributed entirely to hedge purchases against the possibility of a strike.
